The novel opens with Aunt Polly scouring the house in search of her nephew, Tom Sawyer. She finds him in the closet, discovers that his hands are covered with jam, and prepares to give him a whipping. Tom cries out theatrically. “Look behind you!” and when Aunt Polly turns, Tom escapes over the fence. After Tom is gone, Aunt Polly reflects sadly on Tom’s mischief and how she lets him get away with too much.

Tom comes home at suppertime with a half-smoked cigar in his mouth and a smile on his face. He tells how he was skipped school that afternoon and went elsewhere to fish. He was so engrossed in his fishing that he didn’t notice the water was up to his neck and that his collar was still around his neck. Aunt Polly is satisfied.

Tom and the new arrival from school have a fall-out. Tom goes out of the house in a rage. He gets arrested for carrying a multi-colored knife and eventually chooses the newsman all the way home.

When he arrives home in the evening, Tom finds Aunt Polly waiting for him. She notices his dirtied clothes and resolves to make him work the next day, a Saturday, as punishment.

On Saturday morning, Aunt Polly sends Tom out to whitewash the fence. His pages try, and Tom tries to get him to do some of the whitewashing in return for a “white alley,” a kind of muzzle. He almost agrees, but Aunt Polly appears and chases him off, leaving Tom alone with his labors.

Tom returns home at suppertime. During supper, Aunt Polly mentions that Tom has been skipping school that afternoon and went to the woods, but Tom's half-brother, Sid, is not there. Aunt Polly is satisfied. Tom has survived the emptiness of the woods and the cold and the hunger that has followed him. Tom and the new arrival in the neighborhood, Becky Thatcher, catch a glimpse of the new house and eventually choose the new house as the way home.
