The novel opens with Aunt Polly scrounging the house in search of her nephew, Tom Sawyer. She finds him in the closet, discovers that his hands are covered with ink, and prepares to give him a whipping. Tom cries out theatrically, "Look behind you!" and when Aunt Polly turns, Tom escapes over the fence. After Tom is gone, Aunt Polly reflects sadly on Tom's mischief and how she lets him get away with too much.

Tom comes home at suppertime, looking as if he had been skipping school that afternoon and was very miserable. He looks around the yard and sees that his clothes are still aired on the line, but no, Tom's half brother, Ben, has taken them off and thrown them into a corner of the barn. Tom scolds himself for disguising his guilt and resolves to make up for his mistake.

Tom goes out of the house into the street, which is crowded with people. He sees a crowd of boys gathering around a dog, and when he asks what is happening, they tell him that it is a "whitewashing." While wandering down the street of St. Petersburg, Tom meets Huckleberry Finn and they become fast friends. Tom and Huckleberry are the new arrival in town, and eventually Huckleberry becomes the new owner of the way house.

When he returns home in the evening, Tom finds Aunt Polly waiting for him. She notices his dirtied clothes and resolves to make him work the next day, a Saturday, as punishment.

On Saturday morning, Aunt Polly sends Tom out to whitewash the fence. His paces by, and Tom tries to get him to do some of the whitewashing as return for a "white alley," a kind of suitcase. His almost agrees, but Aunt Polly appears and chases him off, leaving Tom alone with his work.

To enhance patient safety, data about actual clinical events must be collected and scrutinized. This paper has two purposes. First, it provides an overview of some of the methods available to collect and analyze retrospective data about medical errors, near misses, and other relevant patient safety events. Second, it introduces a methodological approach that focuses on non-routine events (NRE ...
